CITY MATTERS.

Mrs. James Dicus and Mrs. William Bailey will leave this evening on a visit to tri ads

Geo. B. Smith and N. A. Clark departed this morning via the C., C., C & I. for San Francisco. They will stop off at New Orleans to take in the Exposition.

Mr. H. G. Marshall, the laundryman, was called to Dayton on account of the sudden death of his brother, who was found dead in his bed on yesterday morning. Supposed to be a case of heart disease.

A telephone to this office last night from South Charleston, said: Henry Beny, an old colored man, eighty years of age, went to the woods near this place for a load of wood, and was found there at 3 o'clock p. m , dead. The cause of dea h was not then known. The funeral of John Kershner will be held ternoon. Friends are invited to attend. Members of the City Council will meet at the council chamber at 1 o'clock, and proceed in a body to the house, No. 266 East street, The patrol wagon made a bootless run last night beyond the old toll-gate on Limestone street, south, on a report that a lot of tramps were raiding around and alarming people by their suspicious actions. The Knights of the road had vamosed before the wagon arrived. There will be a special meeting of Moncrieffe Lodge, Knights of Pythias, at the Castle hall, Mark t street, tomorrow evening at 7:30. Every member should be present, as matters of very great importance and interest will come up for discussion and action.

Minerva M., wite of Oliver K. Mclatire, died this morning at her residence on Water street, of puerperal fever and jauudice, leaving a husband and five children, a new-born babe having died a few days since. Funeral services at the house, Saturday alternoon at two o'clock. Carriages have been engaged for the Mayor, Solicitor, City Clerk, S reet Commissioner, City Engineer, S rgeat-at-Arms and other officials to attend the Kershner obsequies at the house, tomerrow afternoon, and those designated will meet at the C uncil chamber at one o'clock, and accompany the m-mners of the City Conseil.

Coroner Coleman held an inquest last evening into the case of drowning reported yesterday, and rendered as his verdict that the boy, Jo. Reeisky, came to his death by accidental drowning, and no blame attaches to any one. The three-year-old with little Jo., when he tell in, was his cousin, the little son of Joseph Adlon, and not his brother.

There was a consultation this morning between the proper authorities as to the Ropp case, on Clifton street, particulars of which were given last evening, and what action should be taken officially. It is likely the woman who has been caged up at her home will have a hearing as to her mental condition, and the cruel busband will be properly Cedarville's latest sensation is an elopement, the parties to which are Lizzie Blake, a school girl, and Ike Weyr outh, who were seen in the morning to drive off in the direction of Nenia. They have carried on a clandestine correspondence for some time, and this is the girl's second attempt at elopement. New York is the probable destination of the rubaways.

The Democrats of the Fourth ward held a meeting at Todd's hall on Tuesday evening to nominate a ward ticket. After a very harmonious discussion the following ticket was nominated: For Council, W. S. Thomas; for School Board (long term), James A. Cashman; for School Board (short term), Jacob Coherst; for Assessor, William Gleves. A resolution of respect was adopted upon the death of Mr. John Kersbner, and it was decided to attend his tuneral in a body, and tor that purpose to meet at Sullivan's grocery at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon.

Smith Family Front.

The Indianapolis Journal says: "The Smiths seem to be coming into unusual prominence. Sidney Smith has been neminated for Mayor of Chicago, and Amor Smith for Mayor of Cincinnati," To which add the thrice illustrious name of Squire Jacob January Smith, Democrat, of Springfield, Ohio, who will not be elected this spring.

The Station House.

The station house is gradually filling up Beside the chance boarders who are picked up from day to day, it has twenty-eight regular patrons, who go out in the morning to labor for the public welfare on the stone pile and ceturn at night to sleep. To these twentyeight three more will probably be added today. These three are Robert Long, George Smith and John Davidson, who were arrested yesterday afternoon by Kerns and Wilson tot loitering around the Little Miami round house. These migratory gendemen were treated to a ride in the patrol wagon as far as the station, but for some little time to come they will probably have to wear] out sole leather in going to and from their labors on the stone pile.

Besides the above, William Smith is the only addition to the Woods and Dotze family made last night. William poticing that the moon shone brightly and the air was soit and balmy concluded that such nights were not made for nothing and that last evening must not be allowed to slip by unimproved. So were allowed to go with a reprimand.

What Ails Our Fruit Trees?

With singular lack of interest the Farmers Institute, held here last week, ignored the discussion of this topic. Had it not been for the able paper on, and discussion of, "Our Forests and Arbor Day," the whole subject of trees and tree protection would probably have been crowded out altegether. Those who heard Mr. Warder were early convinced that there, was need of inquiry and anxiety in regard to the subject of trees. The agitation that this ques ion is causing smong our orchardists will soon reach the general farmer, when, we hope, our beautiful country will assume quite a diff rent aspect.

While other subjects discussed were in a direct line with the sumediate income of dollars and cents, this is not, and that fact seems to be the chief reason why the interest of the people is so hard to obtain. But there are several reasons.

Let us take a careful retrospect to begin with, and then a clear survey of this subject. We perhaps are not willing to admit that there is a terrible retribution tollowing in the wake of destroyed forests, but we must admit that for the last fifteen to thirty years trees of all kinds have suffered terribly, so much so that the product and usefulness of our fruit tees have been very much impaired. The fine, old orchards of our tathers, the peach, the pear, the plum trees, and cherry and quince, even the current bushes, seem to be like the veritable fig tree of G spel mention with the add d exaggeration of le flessness; we of course admit exceptions, but still we are inclined to ask, "What ails them?" Do we want to hear the answer? Well, hardly, "We have lost more money in trying to raise the necessary amount of truit in the last ten years than it takes to buy all the fruit we want, and more, too. There is no use trying to raise fruit or give the subject further attention. Give me a nice sugar tree for shade or ornament, and let me raise some hing more profitable on the land occupied by fruit trees." Do the French people talk or act that way Or the German or English? Or the New Jersey or New York, Western Reserve or Michigan people say and do that way? If so, where do men go to buy? Does the closing of our eyes and ears to the facts around us make the truth the less forcible, or the cousequences the less certain? By no means. Go look at the dead and dving fruit trees of only a small portion of Central and Southern Ohio: there the miserable semblance of trees stand and look at you in retu n. Pitifully it not audibly they say, "What alls you?"

Those trees have been mutely staring at me for some years, and make me have dreams about them. I have looked at them in almost every light, and these are my conclu-

First. The apple tree suffers (a) from im proper care in selecting stock, in selecting situations to grow, in planting, in protecting, in cultivating in pruning, in bearing, in gathering, and in grafting old trees; (5) from extremes in weather, cold, hot, dry and wet; (c) from natural enemies, the borer, the curculio, locusts, birds, animals, and the small boy; (d) from natural retribution, following the destruction of our fores s, which may be the root of the whole evil.

Here are our facts. What shall we do in the matter? If we are not able to tackle the whole batch of these difficulties at once and overcome them, let us take each group, or singly, and rout the whole torce in detail. Next to raising children comes truit trees. A man has not fulfilled an important mission if he has neglec ed either. If we hear in mind that civilization makes as rapid progress in raising trees as in raising wheat, corn or any other products of the soil and adapt ourselves to the change, we will find the science of p mology not any more difficult to comprehend than that of horticulture and agriculture, and nearly, if not fully, as instructive and remunerative. It is not the intention to elaborate this artic'e, how best to overcome these diffi ulties, for that would necessitate an expansion into a good-sized volume, but having thus roughly outlined the main difficulties, the hope is expressed that he who is interested will seek information that is here omitted from the best reliable sources, viz., the careful study of standard authors and from persevering, intelligent exper ments. Try, at least, to propagate some of your own fruit trees from seeds, gratts and cuttings. Deal only with reliable nursery men and their authorized agents.

If the science of pomology were taught our young people as some useless sciences are, this generation had not that regret in beholding the pitiable sight, so prominent in most orchards, lawns and gardens.

Bakeman Bresnahan's Narrow Escape. The Xenia Gazette of Wednesday says: "A quite painful and possibly serious accident happened yesterday evening to Tim Bresnahan, brakeman on John Brown's train that runs between here and Sprin, field. Conductor Brown has a small target rifle with which he and his brakemen have been amusing themselves shoo ing at game along the route and sometimes at a mark in the car In this way they have become quite expert as marksmen, often sitting up a parlor match and lighting it by shooting a portion of the head off and now and then performing other teats. Yesterday Brown and Bresnahan were practicing by shooting at the empty shells of the gun, which they set up in the rear door of the caboose, the same being open. Bresnehan had fired several times and was watching Brown when one of these criminals elected to be a bullet struck the iron facing of the door sill and rebounded, striking him in the left eye, causing a very painful wound. The particle was removed at once, and did not lodge very deeply in the ball of the eye, and Tim is around today with his eye done up and says that he feels all right, but there is no telling yet how it may affect the sight. Tim is a favorite among the railroad boys and Conductor Brown feels awful bad about it, although it cannot be blamed onto him,"

A MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE.

In these days of mysteries and disappearances, it is comforting to know that bank cashiers are not the only fugitives. There are old tormentors who are not de-There are old formentors who are not de-faulters. Some of them stay much longer than they are wanted. In fact, they are not wanted at all; and the only gratifica-tion in connection with their history is when they get out and go away.

The experience of Mr. Isaiah T. Smith, of Chicago, shows how an unwelcome intruder may sometimes take sudden leave, and be very welcome in his going.

Mr. Smith is a resident of Waukegan, Ill., a few miles out of Chicago, and comes to town every day in the duty of his regu-lar business, which is that of a miller and a dealer in flour. His face and form we regularly see "on change," where he is well-known to the business men of the city. Mr. Smith had an old tormentor. That tormentor has disappeared. The mystery disappearance is best told by Mr. Smith himself, in a conversation which he had with one of our editors who recently visited him. Mr. Smith is a cheery gentleman, of nearly three score and ten, and gave his account substantially as follows:

"For a good many years rheamatism had its hold on me. For five years I was continually a martyr to it. With every change of the weather I had severe attacks. These were chiefly in the chest, but somewhat in the arms. For a considerable while I could not dress myself. My shoulders gave me almost constant pain, so much so that I could not, with any degree of comfort, lean back against a chair, or against the wall. The pain interfered with my sleep. Sometimes at night a paroxysm my steep. Sometimes at fight a paroxysm would take me suddenly. There were times at which my pains were so great that I thought I could not live an hour. "Friends and doctors prescribed and ad-vised almost everything on earth. I tried a great many of the things recommended, I dieted; I gave up smoking; I took morphine, and many other medicines. Nothing gave me anything better than temporary relief, until I took Athlophoros. At the time I took this remedy, the rheumatism had attacked my stomach with neuralgic pains and cramps; so you see that my case was a very severe one.

"I took Athlophe, "sexactly as directed, only a double dose, i.r. my pains were so very severe. Very soon the pains mys-teriously disappeared. After a while they returned, coming at regular periods, and each time with less force. Then they went all away, and since that, I am happy to say, they have never come back again.

"I think my case a remarkable one.
How Athlophoros acts I don't pretend to say; I only know it acted on me. I had matism so badly that sometimes I would wake in the night and tell my wife I couldn't live till morning. Athlophoros cured me.
"Do you want to know about my daughter-in-law? Well she had "milk-arm." Her arm was swollen as large as two arms ought to be. When the swelling abated, ought to be. When the swelling abated, she was taken with severe rheumatic pains. These pains took her in the wrist and shoulders principally. Athlophoros acted on her as promptly as it did on me. I kept on giving it to her as long as she had any suffering. She had suffered for weeks. This was last Fall, and since that she has had no pains, nor any inconvenience, except a slight stiffness in the wrist.

"Our milkman, Mr. G. W. Covkendall, had rheumatism so badly that he had to have his little girl go around in the wagon with him and deliver the milk. I gave him Athlophoros, and less than a bottle of it cured him so that he could go his rounds by himself.

"How many bottles did I take? Well, one bottle did most of the business for me, but I wanted to kill my old termenter com-pletely, and so I kept on till I had taken feur bottles. Now I come to town every day in all weathers. No storm or cald makes any difference with me. I am free from rheumatism. If it were to attack me again I would take Athlophoros and be done with it."

Thus the mystery is explained. The dis-

Thus the mystery is explained. The disappearance was natural enough. The old tormentor, Rheumatism, is put to flight by Athlophoros, the popular remedy for which all the best druggists now find a large and increasing demand.

"Pap" Merrill.

Many are the stories told of "Pap" Merrill, the late deceased manager of the Milwaukee Road. He was nobly revered by the employes everywhere on the road. "The boys" were strongly the road. attached to the "old man," as he wa called. One day he was going over the road, and, while the train was waiting at a station, the "wheel tester," a trusty Irishman, was busy tapping the coach wheels with his long-handled hammer, Mr. Merrill watched him a few moments, and, approaching the man, said: "Let me take that hammer and show you how to try a wheel." The Irishman paid no attention to him, but kept on with his work. Several times Mr. Merrill asked for the hammer as he followed the man from wheel to wheel, but the fellow never looked at him. He passed to the other side of the train, when the conductor said: "Mike, why didn't you give the 'old man' the ham-mer?" "Pwhat's that ye say? the 'old man' is it?" said Mike, straightening up with much surprise, and quickly started for Mr. Merrill. Approaching him graciously and with a reverent bow, he said: "Mr. Merrill, I beg yer pardon, sir, for not spakin to ye, sir, a bit ago. I did not know it was you at all, sir, and e know that if I paid attention to every d-d fool that comes along I'd have no time to attend to me business."

In regard to the hanging of pictures, few cardinal principles should not be lost sight of. Pictures are made to be They should not be hung so high that one has to stretch one's neck to see them. A picture highly worked up in detail should be closer to the eye than a strong, broad composition, in which all parts of the composition are put in in masses. Family pictures should be confined to family rooms. The light on a picture should come from the same side as the light in a picture. Pictures on the line of sight should be hung flat on the wall; those above the line of sight may for convenience of inspection be tilted slightly forward. Large heavy frames should never be tilted forward directly above sofas or chairs that are close to the wall. They always seem dangerous. It is not pleasant to have the consciousness of a two hundred pound man just over one's head, and his whole body swang out of the center of gravity. Groups of pictures are only effective when there is harmony of subject, of color and of fitness in the framing. Old paintings and new ones almost always injure each other when hung close together. Few pictures should be hung in the dining-room, and care should be taken in the selection of subjects. The writer was once obliged to take his dinner with an Oriental executioner and a decapitated victim on one side of him, and a lugubrious Christian martyr by Max on the other. It was almost as distressing as a crucifixion in a billiard-room or the death of Marat in a bath-room. It is not appe tizing to have realistic pictures of fish in the dining-room, nor does it add to the cheerfulness of a parlor to give "The Death Bed of Abraham Lincoln" a prominent place. Glazed pictures should never be hung opposite dow, as they are sure to reflect the light disagreeably. Masonic certifi-cates, certificates of membership in a missionary society, etc., are not pictures at all, no matter how much orna-mented. They are purely personal affairs, and should not be framed or hung at all. They interest nobody but the owner and his dearest friends, and are almost never ornamental. One should not be egotistical in his pictures any more than in his conversation .- New York Independent.

Tom Elliott, a rich young farmer of Dakota, having announced that he would never marry until wheat sold at $1 per bushel, a neighboring farmer, who has a daughter willing to relieve Tom's loneliness, has offered to take his entire crop at $1 a bushel and give him a check for it at the wedding.

"Fizzled Out."

This is what a once prosterous merchant id o; himself, the other day. His business had taded out, credit was gone, and the sher-iff had sold his goods. The trouble proceeded from a prolonged attack of dyspepsia, which prostrated and unsettled him so that he could not attend to his affairs. Pity he hadn't thought of Brown's Iron Bitters, which would have saved him. Mr. A. J. Lawler, 172 S.
